

O'Neill Sea Odyssey Scientific Illustration Challenge Week of April 13, 2020

Hey OSO students! Torn between science and art? You don't have to be!
You can choose both!

Did you know scientific illustration is a growing field that provides art for science and medical magazines, interpretive panels, signage, brochures, maps for parks and protected areas, children's books and graphic novels, and documentation of species for zoos, aquariums, and scientific research institutions?

Scientific Illustration by Chip Street

This week's challenge, should you choose to accept it, is to become a scientific illustrator for OSO. Draw this planktonic crustacean, known as a copepod:

Feel free to include imaginative use of color or other creative and original ideas. Submit your drawing to OSO by sending us a photo of your artwork. We will share your drawings with our followers on social media. Take a photo of your artwork and email it to lwalker@oneillseaodyssey.org or post it and tag @oneillseaodyssey on Instagram and Facebook!
